How to Solve a Cryptogram

Each puzzle is a favourite saying with its letters replaced by other letters. The same substitution is used all the way through a single puzzle, so every coded A always stands for the same real letter.

No letter ever stands for itself, and the spaces, apostrophes and punctuation are left in place to help you. Write your answer in the blank line printed beneath each coded letter.

Look for the small words first. A single-letter word is almost always A or I. A three-letter word that appears often is usually THE or AND. An apostrophe is usually followed by S, T or D. Doubled letters are commonly LL, EE, SS or OO.

The puzzles are graded Easy, then Medium, then Hard. Easy puzzles reveal a few letters to start you off and show a chart of how often each code appears; Medium puzzles show the chart; Hard puzzles leave the fun entirely to you.

Once a short word falls into place, the letters you have found unlock more words, and the whole saying will cascade open. The frequency table on the next page shows how often each letter appears in ordinary English.
